Why Must They Fight?

France Has Gold
The Minister's Union

FRANCE requests Italy and England to enter a triple alliance, with all three pledged to fight together, if one should be attacked.

This means if "one" should be attacked by Germany, the British will probably postpone any "three-power" treaty as long as possible. That England has not forgotten the last war is proved by young British college men voting never again to fight for King and country.

You would think that Germany, also, would have enough of war for a while, with practically every large family minus one son at least, excepting the Kaiser's family.

Austria adds to the size of her army.

After the last war, she was carved to look like a man with arms and legs cut off, but she is ready for more. Poland refuses to agree to the "Eastern pact." Germany seems anxious for another war now.

To realize how things are in Europe, imagine the United States with Missouri increasing her army, preparing for war with Kansas, California threatening to bombard Seattle, Pennsylvania and New York state sitting in trenches, bombing each other's cities, trying to make military alliances with Texas and Florida.

Is there any reason why this country should mix in wars based on European hatreds?

A bond trader from New York, aged 40, went to Boston with a young lady, 25, to die by suicide. No need to publish their names all over the country.

He jumped to death from a twelve-story hotel window, in accordance with their agreement.

She looked over the window all, saw how far it was, fell on the floor, was found in hysterics.

She said:
"I just could not make up my mind."

Contemplating the bond trader's body in the morgue, she cried:

"Oh, Harry! Why didn't you wait?"

Can you imagine the surprise of the bond trader, when he came looking around after death and found no lady with him?

If ghosts can sing, he might sing the old Italian song:

"Woman is changeable,
Like a feather in the wind."

Inhabitants of this "world's richest country" read with interest that coins will again be used in France, to prove that gold is a reality, and France is on the gold basis.

One hundred franc pieces, worth about six dollars, will be the biggest gold pieces.

The French and the Prince of Monaco used to make gold pieces of 100 real francs, worth about twenty dollars each, and called "plaques."

In the Monte Carlo gambling rooms, they were convenient for piling up, like chips, on the black, red, odd, even, pass, manque, or your choice number.

Well disciplined American citizens wonder what makes them think to have any gold.

The French can have it. Uncle Sam sells gold to Mexico, so that all their gold taken from them, just before it increased seventy-five per cent in value, is wandering away, with peculiar intensity.

The American "ministers' union," not exactly a labor union, no walking delegates, but a "union" of clergymen, now requests all regular religious denominations to establish a central fund to guarantee "adequate salaries for all regularly ordained ministers."

The idea would be to establish twenty-five hundred dollars a year as a "basic minimum" salary. Little enough, too little. If a clergyman saved only one cent each year, he would earn more than that. How much would you pay to escape one thousand "billionaires" in the years of "fire and brimstone"?

Many clergymen, unfortunately, are paid much less than $2000 a year, miserably unpaid.

The government's naval factory, working night and day, is turning out a "mystery gun," new, five-inch, anti-aircraft weapon, perhaps intended to beat the latest aircraft.

It is better to build the aircraft and let somebody else build the anti-aircraft gun.

The War Department has just ordered fifteen bombing planes in Baltimore for $650,000, and thinks it will have 1337 planes by next June, 146 of them "bombardment planes." A very nice sample.

If the War Department will read the four volumes of Lloyd George's Memoirs, it will discover that the series of old German was about to order forty thousand more planes for the British fighting forces when the armistice came along. We need a real air force.

Ripley Finds Russia 'Giant Poorhouse' HOUSE ASSES JOBS B

'Believe It or Not' 'I Saw Starvation In Soviet Russia,' Says Bob Ripley

The following address on conditions in Soviet Russia was delivered by Robert L. ("Believe It or Not") Ripley before the Crusaders in New York city last night over a Columbia Broadcasting Company nation-wide network:

A YEAR ago I found myself on the border of Russia and Persia. The Persians had left me and my baggage exactly in the middle of the International bridge at Julfa, where it crosses the Araxes River—the boundary line between Russia and Persia. I was completely abandoned—and totally isolated.

The Red soldiers at the Russian end of the bridge wouldn't let me cross, and the Persian soldiers at the other end wouldn't let me return. So there I sat in "No Man's Land" for about five hours.

Finally some Soviet officials aroused themselves long enough to put me through a microscopic examination. They turned my baggage inside out searching for arms and money, and pried into every piece of paper I had in search of anti-Communist propaganda.

Then, after seizing my three cameras, I was permitted to set foot in Russia—the "Communist Paradise."

Believe It or Not—it is not a paradise but a paradox. Russia is a gigantic poorhouse where millions of people are on the verge of starvation at this moment. Outside of Moscow and Leningrad—the Reloncia, Greece, April 5 (AP)—Major Volanis, convicted yesterday by a court of martial law of complicity in the recent Greek revolt, was executed by a firing squad today.

MAN HELD IN ROOSEVELT THREAT

Secret Service agents today arrested a Cambridge man on a charge of threatening to kill President Roosevelt.

Thomas F. Murphy, 29, was seized at his home on Walden street, Cambridge.

Agents told federal court he admitted having written a letter of harassment to the president.

Murphy said he was suffering from a nervous breakdown.

He was held in the custody of the Cambridge Police Department, where his mental and moral condition will be determined.

Murphy is the son of Mrs. Sarah Murphy, 52, of the Walden street address.

He had applied for ERA aid in Cambridge, but was given none. At the time of his application, he had identified himself as a former student at a CCC camp.

RECEIVED LAST WEEK

The letter he is accused of sending reached the White House on March 27 or 28. It was in an envelope addressed, "President Roosevelt, Washington, D. C. Five."

The letter was in pencil and three pages in length. It was a rambling harangue about unemployment and persecution of the writer, at Cambridge factory where he had been discharged.

Secret Service Agent John J. McGrath, who made the arrest, said the letter was found in the envelope for return address and that Murphy admitted having written the letter.

McGrath told United States Commissioner Harry Guterman, before whom the defendant was arraigned, that Murphy told him:

"I cannot explain why I did it except that I've been suffering from hallucinations."

The charge against him was that he had read in order and Murphy appeared not to hear. A not guilty plea was entered at Commissioner McGrath's court.

"MADE A MISTAKE"

"Well, I made a mistake. The way you put it to apologize, I suppose."

McGrath told the court a state hospital doctor had examined Murphy and found him apparently normal. He said he found indications the prisoner had been drinking.

G. F. Haug, of Boston State Hospital, signed the commitment papers.

McGrath said Murphy applied for ERA aid last October 15 for his mother, Mr. and Mrs. George Cahill and their two children.

Cahill, he said, was his brother-in-law. They all lived at the same address in Cambridge.

No aid was given. McGrath said the family was earning $25 a week as a baker.

Murphy said at the time he had applied for aid, he was unemployed.

G. O. P. FLAYS BIG MEASURE AS 'ROTTEN POLITICS'

Washington, April 5—The conference agreement on the $4,850,000,000 work-relief program was approved today by the House. The vote was 317 to 70.

Senate action alone remains to speed the bill to President Roosevelt.

Only an hour's debate produced House agreement. The conference report contained no compromise agreement on the construction work issue in the previous bill, allocating $90,000,000 for nonfederal projects.

House leaders prepared immediately to carry the huge money bill to the other end of the Capitol where Senate leaders waited to press its approval.

Before the House voted it heard Representative Shore (R., Missouri) describe the bill as "rotten, rotten and foul." Short followed Representative Taber (R., New York, who quoted from what he described as a "Democratic campaign page" named the "Window Seat."

"Don't forget that this expenditure will practically assure the defeat of Roosevelt," he said. "There were some Democratic handshakes when he read that sentence but no one interrupted as he added:

"That's the object of this bill. It's raw, raw."

He claimed the law was going to be assured of incompetent administration," because Harry Hopkins, relief administrator, Social Security and Federal Civil Works well, under Secretary of agriculture would have a hand in it.

Democratic leaders hoped to bring the bill aboard an airplane and send it southeast toward President Roosevelt's signature.

BRUNO'S IRON NERVE CRACKS IN DEATH CELL, SAYS REILLY

New York, April 5—Bruno Richard Hauptmann's famed "iron nerves" are going to pieces in the death house of the New Jersey state prison, Edward J. Reilly revealed today in an exclusive interview.

Reilly, who was demanded by Mrs. Hauptmann as chief defense counsel for the convicted slayer of the Lindbergh baby yesterday, said Hauptmann was "like a shadow" when he talked to him for the last time a week ago. Reilly said: "He has watched four men go through that little green door to the electric chair since he entered the prison and it has had a terrible effect on him."

"He was like a shadow when I talked to him. He was more silent than ever. He said nothing while I was there except to mutter his consent to have the record printed for the appeal. His voice was strained and he clutched the bars of his cell."

"He looks strange with his clipped hair."

"Mrs. Hauptmann's appearance was far different from the first time he saw him last November. It was an alert, confident, almost defiant Hauptmann then and his very first words after the introduction to Reilly were: 'Mr. Reilly, I am as innocent of this crime as you are. I am a father myself.'"

State House "Lollypop" Group Hit

There is a "lollypop division" among State House politicians. At least, that is the opinion of Senator James F. Moehan of Lawrence.

Moehan favored a movement to strike from the 1935 state budget an item of $25,000 intended to defray cost of operating the division of research for the prevention of crime of the state department of correction.

Moehan said: "Representatives of that division consult prisoners who are dissatisfied with their surroundings. Why shouldn't they be dissatisfied in jail? This is the lollypop division of the state service."

The lawyer's stand may cost Hauptmann's defense badly. It will be a monumental task for the remaining three attorneys in the case to prepare a 5000-page brief by June 20 when the appeal is to be argued, particularly if they have to do Reilly's share all over again. Reilly said he bears no animus toward either of the Hauptmanns. He said: "I admire Mrs. Hauptmann very much, even if she did fire me. I think Hauptmann's implicit confidence in her is a beautiful tribute to her."

Mrs. Hauptmann said in her letter that her reason for discharging Reilly was his "premature" presentation of a bill for $25,000 for his services.

Reilly hinted, however, that her action was "inspired" from another source.

"He said he would engage an attorney and sue for collection of the $25,000, but will do nothing to interfere with the appeal."

Millen Plea In U. S. Court Hit by Dever

By International News Service Washington, April 5—Attorney General Paul A. Dever of Massachusetts filed a brief in the supreme court today opposing the petition of Irving and Martin Miller, convicted for the murder of Policeman Forbes A. McLeod of Needham.

In his brief he contended there is no merit in the Millers' appeal from lower federal courts, which dismissed their petition for writs of habeas corpus. Dever contended, without jurisdiction to intervene.

He warmly defended the Massachusetts law permitting persons to waive trial by jury in murder cases. The high court may rule Monday whether it will accept the case for review.

'LOVE LEAP' GIRL GIVEN TESTS FOR SANITY

Red-haired Bea Leonora Bryan, pretty 29-year-old divorcee, whose courage failed her in a planned dive to death with Harry B. Van Allen, was trying to prove today that she is sane.

In the Boston Psychopathic Hospital the manicurist sweet-heart of the doomed Van Allen was separating various sized blocks of wood.

She was answering questions which suspected mentally unbalanced persons are asked by psychiatrists.

The girl was committed to the hospital for ten days of observation by Dr. Freeman Andrews, police physician, after she had told police that her courage had failed her in her suicide pact.

Mrs. Harry J. Van Allen, widow of the man who plunged 12 stories from his hotel room, returned to New York today.

Mrs. Van Allen refused to look at the girl when the pair were at the Back Bay police station at the same time.

"I'm not interested in her. I don't want to even look at her," police quoted her as saying.

The body of Van Allen has been ordered for burial by Medical Examiner Timothy Leary.

A letter addressed to "Miss Bryan" was received at the post office today. The return address was "Grandberg, 31 Whittier street, Bridgeport, Ct." It was postmarked April 4 at 10 p. m.

The letter will be turned over to Miss Bryan by police. The contents were not announced.

Boston police requested New York authorities to conduct a complete probe into the private lives of both Van Allen and Miss Bryan today.

No definite charges have been placed against the girl.

Police said that they will take no action until they have received a report of the investigation being carried on in New York and until after the girl is released from the psychopathic hospital.

SHIPWRECK PERILS TOLD BY SURVIVORS

Two epic of the sea were told in Boston today. Thirteen rescued sailors from two American schooners lost off the African coast reached Boston with harrowing tales of shipwreck in shark-infested waters of hunger and privation when cast up on a desolate shore.

Arrival of the American-West African line freighter, Cathlamet, with the rescued crews solved the previously unknown fate of the missing vessels—Trenton of New Bedford, and Kenton of Jacksonville, Fla.

The Trenton struck a reef and overturned off the French West African coast on February 8. Her crew of four was in a boat.

The Kenton foundered off the coast on a storm on January 20, and her crew of nine, in company with the Cathlamet, were visible at all times.

Jack, a young brother of Boyette, was among the crew. Others were Oswald Scott, of Mobile; Andrew Crockett, Edward Bryant, Samuel Grant, Robert Lynch, Ralph Wingate, Edward Becham.

HUNDREDS QUIT Hupp Motor Jobs

Detroit, April 5 (AP)—Production department employees of Hupp Motor Car Company went on strike today, after leaders said officials had refused demands for full day work, a security system and collective bargaining.

A picket line was formed. Strike leaders claimed 90 per cent of the 825 men and women employed were on strike. R. H. Todd, factory manager, said 200 are out, leaving 1200 working.

A. Whidden Memorial Hospital their names were placed on the danger list.

Struggling from smoke inhalation and saved by ladder rescue was 12-year-old Mrs. Harriet Kingsbury. From the roof of an "oil" fire, firemen rescued an unidentified man severely burned whose presence in the house was a mystery for more than an hour until he was able to explain, at the hospital, that he had been passing the scene and attempted to rescue the occupants.

He identified himself as Philip Kingsbury, 26, of Ferry street, Malden.

George Kingsbury and his wife, John B. McCabe of Montreal, her brother and two children, Leo Kingsbury, 14, and John, 10, together with Dr. and Mrs. Henken, were led over burning stairways to safety.

Dr. Henken aroused the Kingsburys and gave first aid to the injured at the scene.

Young Leo Kingsbury, on his way to school when the fire was discovered, ran back to the house and tried to fight his way to the second floor. He was partly overcome.

The fire started from a cause undetermined. Damage was estimated at $5000.

Frederick Rae Joseph Martin

mand of J. Anell Boyette, 25, captain of the University of Florida football team in 1932, made their way to shore to subsist for a week on wild berries, living in a cave.

Frederick Rae of South Boston, Joseph Martin, Oscar Ouchire and Joseph Altes, all of New Bedford, were the crew of the New Bedford schooner which foundered on a voyage to Cape Verde Island. They made their way to St. Vincent and were shipped home by the American consul.

The Kenton, with a crew of Florida and Alabama men, required 114 days for a passage between Jacksonville and Gambier, French West Africa, where the captain left the boat.

None left could navigate. Boyette took command and hired a navigator and started home. Fifty miles off shore, battered by gales and high seas, the Kenton foundered. The crew rowed for 40 hours

Two Years of Beer in U. S. Hit 2-Billion-Dollar Mark

By Associated Press New York, April 5—The first two years of beer's return, the United States Brewers Association estimated today, have directly created 2000 million dollars in new business and have enriched federal and state treasuries by $435,000,000.

The Brewers Association records show from the legislation of 32 beer for a passage between Jacksonville and Gambier, French West Africa, where the captain left the boat.

None left could navigate. Boyette took command and hired a navigator and started home. Fifty miles off shore, battered by gales and high seas, the Kenton foundered. The crew rowed for 40 hours estimates of the Treasury department in the congressional hearings preceding the legalization of beer. The association estimates that 50,000,000 barrels will be sold in 1935. This year started with a heavy increase in sales over the first quarter of 1934, the gain reaching 40 per cent in March.

For the first two years, the association reports a production of 17,000,000 barrels of 22 and higher, and annual consumption is still far below the pre-prohibition record year, ending June 30, 1915, which showed a consumption of 65,189,000 barrels.

Waif's Gamble

HOLDS HIS
$30,000
LIFE CHANCE

DEPENDS ON LADY LUCK
FOR $30,000

New York, April 3.—New York's youngest gambler played with his toes in the New York Foundling Hospital today, while somewhere among the city's millions his young mother prayed that the right horse comes in Monday in the Canadian Chester Cup race.

A sweepstakes ticket in the Montreal Post-Graduate Hospital Trust Fund drawing, based on the Chester Cup, was pinned to the shirt of the month-old baby after his mother left him in a furnished room at Mrs. Dora Norton's rooming house in the Bronx.

There were two bottles of milk and a note, which read: "Please take care of my baby as best you can. I am unable to care for him any longer. Thank you very much."

So the little "Sweepstakes Kid" was taken to the foundling hospital, where he is being cared in an uncertain world with wide, grave eyes. If his ticket is drawn on the winning horse in the Chester Cup race, young Mr. Sweepstakes will have $30,000, and if he invests it wisely and avoids as many income taxes as possible, it will grow to almost $70,000 by the time he is 21.

Just now he hasn't even a name, but some day he might be a millionaire.

Any way you look at it, says the "Sweepstakes Kid," life is a gamble.

(Picture from International News Photograph Service)

Deserted by his mother, this baby's sole chance for a start in life lies in the sweepstakes ticket found pinned to his shirt, which might win him $30,000.

BARBARA Remains in 'HIDING' LAWYER FAILS TO SEE HER

By International News Service
Reno, April 3.—Princess Barbara Hulton Midway, heiress to a fortune of $40,000,000, is leading a life of cloistered seclusion here as she spends the six weeks necessary to establish a residence in Nevada, the first step toward divorcing Prince Alexis Midway.

Her attorney said today that he had not seen his client for several days.

Already she has decided upon the automobile she will purchase for use while here. It was said it will not be large or expensive, but adequate to transport the princess and one or two friends.

Inclement weather, together with the nervous exhaustion occasioned by her hurried ocean trip from London and her equally speedy trip by plane from New York to Reno, offer the reasons for the princess' non-appearance in the divorce couple's awkward night apart, it was said.

It was revealed today any fear which might have been held for the safety of the housewife-princess was diminishing.

The guards around the estate of George R. Thayer, Reno attorney of the princess, where she is living, have been reduced to one man.

The guard, William A. Barry, former cowboy and Reno policeman, is on duty only at night. The princess' household revealed that Thomas Murray, a former constable, resigned his position.

Murray, reputed to be a dead shot, told friends he quit because there was no need for two men, and that the compensation was insufficient for the long vigil.

Four-Legged 'Fire Alarm'

Thanks to their pet dog, Trixie, who awakened them with her barking, Gloria and Arthur Cardella of Neptune road, East Boston, were able to escape a fire which swept their home today. Police assisted them and their parents to the street. (Picture by Boston Evening American Staff Photographer.)

2 SAVED From Fire Death IN EAST BOSTON

Trapped in their burning tenement home three floors above the street, Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Cardella, of 41 Neptune road, East Boston, were saved from death today. Four police officers fought their way over flame-glazed stairways to lead them to safety.

The police also rescued more than a dozen other persons, several of them children, living at 39 Neptune road.

For a time the wooden tenement house district was threatened. Starting from carelessly dumped hot ashes in a wood-container the fire swept up through the rear of 41 Neptune road and jumped next door to 39 Neptune road before it was discovered.

Loss was estimated at nearly $4000.

ATLANTIC AIR Route Planned

New York, April 3 (UPI).—Bound for Washington to discuss a plan to span the north Atlantic with a fleet of planes, C. H. Gillingham, director of the Irish transatlantic corporation, arrived in the United States this morning.

The proposed route would be between the Port of Galway, Ireland and the Bay of Notre Dame on the northern fringe of Newfoundland. The route could be covered in less than nine hours, Gillingham said.

MYSTERY WOMAN ROUTS CAPE POLICE SEEKS OLD FALMOUTH HOME

Falmouth, April 3.—Mrs. Margaret Ann Sutherland Craig, Falmouth's big mystery for the past three days took charge of herself today.

Worried over the welfare of Mrs. Craig, who says she came here in search of her old home, were some in her hidden piles of money, jewelry and a Russian sable coat.

Chief of Police Baker sent Officer James Hazleton to obtain a new interview with the woman today.

Approaching Mrs. Craig with all the courtesy at his command, Hazleton began about as follows:

"Mrs. Craig, I—"

He didn't get another word in. Mrs. Craig began to talk.

"I want you to understand that I desire to be left strictly alone."

"I am sick and tired of being bothered by the police, I can't turn around but some policeman is at my side and I am plain sick of it."

"I am old enough to take care of myself. I know exactly what I am doing. I am not bothering anyone. I am not sick. I want to be left alone."

"I have a perfect right to be in this town and I intend to stay here for awhile. When I am ready to leave I'll leave and not until then. Now go away and don't be coming here bothering me every minute."

Officer Hazleton, aware that he had no further right to question the mysterious Mrs. Craig, left the house.

Police have definitely established that the woman came to Falmouth from Albany, N. Y.

Until the night previous to her arrival on the Cape she had lived with a Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Sheridan at 74 Clinton street, Albany.

SISTER IN CONVENT

In an interview with Mrs. Sheridan today the Boston Evening American was informed that Mrs. Craig had said she had a sister in the convent of the Most Precious Blood, in Montreal.

"Mrs. Craig was always a mysterious woman during the four months she was here."

"She came to my house after seeking advice on rooms from the Travelers Aid desk at the Union Station. She said she wanted a room for three weeks, but she remained here for four months."

"She never had a single visitor during her stay here. Occasionally she would go out during the afternoon, but never during the evening."

"She told me once that she had a sister in the convent in Montreal. I believe she said her sister was called Sister Benedictus. She said she was a member of the order of the Most Precious Blood."

"Occasionally she would go for two or three weeks without paying her rent, and then a registered letter would arrive from Albany."

Julian Wins 20 to 1 Bet on Old Horses

By Associated Press

Washington, April 3.—William A. Julian, treasurer of the United States, wasn't touched by the recent letter from the Volin, South Dakota, farm boy which brought two old artillery horses to his father. Julian told about it today.

"Piffle," he said in his special assistant, G. G. Emerson, when the story was made public. "I'll bet you $100 to $5 that the family owns an automobile."

"I'll take one dollar of that at those odds," countered Emerson.

Whereupon a neighboring postmaster was appealed to settle the friendly controversy. Today came the reply.

Julian won.

'I Saw Starvation in Russia,' Says Bob Ripley

Soviet show places—starvation stalks through squalor and filth.

Moscow and Leningrad are show places—and fake shows at that—where the traveler is led about under a smoke screen of propaganda and allowed to see only what they want him to see and nothing else. You are shown the Kremlin—Lenin's tomb, a "model" farm, a "model" school, a "model" workers' club, and various other "models."

But there are no model conditions in the outlying rural districts, the Ukraine and the Caucasus. I had no food for the first two days after crossing the border from Persia. Ragged, starving mobs crowded to the train windows begging and crying for bread.

IN A SINGLE year—1932—4,000,000 peasants died of starvation in the Ukraine and North Caucasus—the most fertile part of all Russia. The Ukraine was called "the granary of the world" in the time of the Czars and produced enough grain to feed the whole country and exported hundreds of millions of bushels each year besides.

Starvation in Russia is not due to crop failures—it is a man-made famine. The Soviet government deliberately caused this ghastly chaos by robbing the farmers of their grain in order to sell it in foreign countries and acquire foreign currency.

The Soviet government holds money more valuable than the lives of its people. In the meantime the people struggled to subsist on dogs, cats, weeds and grass—even extracting the gold fillings from their teeth in order to buy a loaf of bread in a Torgsin shop.

I traveled from one end of the country to the other and never saw a dog or cat, nor did I hear one person laugh or see a single smiling face.

Professor L. Tarashevich, noted Russian sociologist, in an official report to the League of Nations, says that 30,000,000 Russians have starved to death since the country turned Communist. This astounding figure is substantiated by Fridtjof Nansen, head of the world organization of the Red Cross and delegate of the League of Nations to Russia.

Such are the conditions existing today in the "Communist Paradise," which has practiced for 18 years a "share-the-wealth" plan such as is advocated by some of our political "cure-alls."

IN 1917 THE Communists seized the wealth of Russia. They "liquidated" the capitalists, and destroyed the educated classes. They murdered the rich—stole their wealth—seized all the gold, silver and precious stones—and confiscated all private property of every description.

They took 500 million dollars in gold from the national treasury (the largest stock of gold in the world at that time). They grabbed another 50 millions in gold from Rumania. They confiscated 800 millions in American property.

They destroyed all religion and looted the churches, taking all the gold, tapestries, priceless paintings, and precious stones valued at 20 billions of dollars—all in all a grand total of 40 billions of dollars was confiscated from the people.

In addition, they utterly repudiated about 11 billions of dollars in loans from France, England, Belgium and the United States.

Then, after appropriating all the conceivable wealth in Russia in this gigantic scheme of "sharing-the-wealth," Believe It or Not there is not a single working man in the Soviet Union today who owns an automobile—or his own home—or has 5000 rubles in the bank—as per the formula of our political demagogues.

The Russian "Pied Pipers" of 1917 led the people on with promises of liberty, prosperity, and equal division of wealth. Yet today—after 18 years of Communism—there is utterly no wealth, no liberty, and instead of prosperity they have starvation.

NEVER under the old Czarist regime were they as miserable and oppressed as they are now. A thousand times more people are being exiled to the frozen wastes of Siberia today than at any time under the rule of the Czars.

In 1932, for example, the Red Army moved into the Ukraine and loaded 80,000 families into freight cars and sent them to far-off Yakutsk in Eastern Siberia, where they were literally dumped out on the ice in a country where the thermometer seldom rises above zero. Out of the 80,000 families (a total of about 300,000 people) it is estimated today that not more than 5000 remain alive.

You probably have heard little of these appalling conditions because of the strict censorship of news. Personal mail is censored, particularly all foreign letters, and Russians (who are living in fear and dread of the Gay Pay Oo—GPU—that huge secret service of Russia) dare not in any way express their opinions in writing.

The newspapers, which are owned and operated solely by the government, keep the people in utter darkness with regard to foreign affairs. News about America is reduced to nothing but labor strikes, race riots, lynchings, and unemployment photographs.

All foreign catalogues, magazines and books are strictly forbidden. Communists fear that pictures of good things to eat, good clothes to wear, and other comforts of life will create dissatisfaction in their ranks.

They even guard Russia from the air! By means of a powerful radio station in Moscow they drown out any foreign broadcasts they don't like. They generally use a melody that makes the greatest noise on the air waves.

When I was there they were using an old religious song written by Cardinal Newman of England. It is appropriately called the "Chorus of the Demons."

Would you like to hear how it sounds when they are blocking out foreign broadcasts? I'll have it played for you in authentic Soviet manner, just as it was used over the Russian radio.

"Chorus of the Demons"—(played by orchestra—about one-half minute).

THE Communists delight in appealing to the unemployed of America by telling them there are no unemployed in Russia.

Believe It or Not—neither are there any unemployed in a penitentiary.

Everybody in Russia is a prisoner of the government. The workingman has no choice about his work, or where he lives, or how much he is paid. He has no religion, no home life, and no privacy.

He has utterly no freedom of speech. You might remember this next time you hear one of our many soap box orators spouting forth, and bear in mind that if he attempted to open his mouth in Communist Russia he would wake up to find himself either dead or on his way to Siberia.

His freedom of movement is denied him. He can't go from one village to another—he can't quit his job—he can't even take a day off.

Without warning he is liable to be arrested, torn from his family, herded into a freight car and sent thousands of miles away, where he is forced to labor under inhuman conditions in some concentration camp of Northern Russia.

Even death does not set him free. In case of death the clothing and shoes are removed from the body. Even the teeth are extracted, and any gold or silver fillings are melted down and confiscated by the government.

The average salary of an ordinary working man in Russia is about 150 paper rubles a month. From this the following deductions are compulsory:

- 22 rubles go to the government.
- 15 rubles are taken for assessments and taxes.
- 2 rubles for union dues.
- 25 rubles for rent.

Which leaves the average working man 86 rubles for himself to purchase food and clothing.

LET me quote you the prices of some of the daily necessities, as reported in the "Red Evening Gazette"—of Moscow—a government-owned newspaper—of recent date.

Bread is a ruble and a half a loaf; milk, 2½ rubles a quart; butter, 20 rubles a pound; eggs, 10 rubles a dozen; rice, 5 rubles a pound; women's common cotton stockings cost 15 rubles; a shirt costs 30 rubles, and the cheapest suit costs 175 rubles, which is more than twice his net salary a month.

These conditions are imposed upon every Soviet worker by the government, and there is no escape. A worker may be dissatisfied and try to leave the country, but if he is caught he is shot. If he succeeds in crossing the border his innocent relatives are made to suffer. All his family are exiled to Siberia.

And—Believe It or Not—these are the conditions that Communists hope to impose on the entire world.

If you don't think so let me quote you from Stalin's speech, as published by the Communist Press in Leningrad. He said:

"I think, comrades, that the Communist Party of America is one of the few Communist parties in the world upon which history has placed tasks of decisive importance from the point of view of the international revolution."

"I think that the moment is not far off when a revolutionary crisis will be unleashed in America, and when that revolutionary crisis comes in the United States it will mark the end of world capitalism."

"The Communist Party of the United States must be armed to be able to meet this historical moment and to head the forthcoming class war."

That, ladies and gentlemen, is the aim of the Communists.

COMMUNISM capitalizes on discontent and takes advantage of ignorance and poverty in times of widespread trouble and economic disorder. Following the terrible debacle of the Great War a mere 70,000 Communists were able to overthrow the established law and order of 170 million people. This small group of people—the least competent, the least successful, and the least humane—reduced Russia to slavery, serfdom, and starvation.

No worse punishment could be inflicted on the many Communist crack-pots shouting throughout this country of ours than to exile them to Russia—the "Communist Paradise"—and make them live under the system they preach.

Yes, I've mingled with the people of 178 different countries of the world in my travels, and I know that despite the depression—which is worldwide—the United States still has more prosperity, more freedom, more tolerance, and more happiness than any other nation in the world.

BELIEVE IT OR NOT.

CRIES OF 'NAZI' STIR PROBE

The cry "Nazi" was called today in the Federal Securities Commission hearing at the Federal Building at the inquiry into operations of the Winchester Institute of Finance.

Attorney George Alpert, counsel for the Institute, shouted the charge at Laurence W. Winchester, former president of the organization.

The lawyer's anger was aroused when Winchester declared he was prejudiced against Joseph Barger, general manager of the Institute, because of Barger's "Jewish actions" in doing business.

"Jewish actions?" Attorney Alpert shot back at the witness. "What do you mean by that remark? Are you a German? Are you a Nazi? Are you persecuting Barger because he is a Jew?"

Winchester made no answer to the state remarks of the attorney, who then turned to Joseph Brand, master at the hearing, and said:

"That remark is the most prejudiced I have ever listened to in any court and perhaps the most bitter ever uttered before any tribunal in America."

Winchester, under cross-examination by Alpert, changed some of his testimony of yesterday.

The hearing opened with Winchester's denial that he had made a statement regarding ownership of shares of the stock of the Winchester Institute of Finance, which yesterday, he testified, were owned by him. He said he was the owner in record, but not the actual owner.

Alpert asked the witness if he ever signed any promissory notes. He denied that he signed notes and said that Barger ever received any promissory notes from him.

HOUGHTON'S—at Boston's Famous Corner—TREMONT AT BEACON STREET

This Is Life ROBERT E. ROGERS

If there ever were a situation in which public flogging at the whipping post would seem to be in order, that presented by the existence of automobile stealing gangs in Charlestown and South Boston is such a situation.

Whether there exists such a gang known formally as the "Dripping Daggers" does not particularly matter; the conditions exhibited by the events of the past few days call for drastic action on the part of public opinion. There has been some talk of legislative action making auto stealing a felony instead of a misdemeanor. This is a step in the right direction, but merely because such a measure will give the police the right to shoot when pursuing young hoodlums running amuck in stolen cars but because any measure which will put them on for a reasonably long period will help to clean up the situation. In comparison with this, the belated suggestion of some of the local good-hearted people that all that is necessary is to provide a minimum for minor youth, seems essentially feeble minded. The suggestion is based on the notorious American failure to crime, particularly juvenile crime, is entirely the result of poverty, "underprivilege," and an unfortunate environment. The action is a shameful insult in all the decent, religious, law-abiding youth of Charlestown and South Boston, who, with no greater opportunity and no better environment, are living respectable, useful and promising lives, attending school, planning and working for higher education, preparing to marry and raise families that will be a credit to their communities.

In the Minority

Why not argue that they too are the product of their environment? They do not need gymnasiums to keep them straight. They are naturally decent. They respect their parents and have no desire to abuse them. They are legion, while the "Dripping Daggers" and their like are only a vicious minority who need disciplinary control and for want of it have drifted into vicious, murderous hoodlums, have gotten away with it until they believe themselves to be above the law. And if what Mr. Connel says about the weakness and feebleness of our local courts is true—and I believe him implicitly—they are probably correct in believing that they will not suffer for their crimes.

It would not surprise any of us to learn that their crimes will be non-prosecuted, given suspended sentences, and allowed to go back to car stealing and what amounts to almost deliberate manslaughter. There are offenses in which unemployment, hunger, debt and great personal anguish play such a heavy part that probation and suspended sentences seem not only merited but just. Any court can tell the difference between that kind of offense and criminal action for the sake of action, for adventure, bravado, defiance of the law.

What Defense?

Can anyone offer any reasonable defense of these boy gangsters who steal property, drive recklessly and dangerously through populous districts and deliberately take the risk of manslaughter rather than of arrest? Can anyone seriously argue that boys' clubs and gymnasiums—the sort of thing they have come to despise—can have the slightest effect on such habitual impetuous gangsters? For between the "Dripping Daggers" and the older, more highly organized, more deadly gangs is only a short step. There is considerable evidence, both here in America and abroad, that public flogging, laid on briskly, is a genuine deterrent to the kind of crime which results not from necessity but from mere antisocial anarchy.

We are a tender hearted people toward criminals and there will be a great outcry if any serious-minded, responsible group of citizens should have the courage to advocate such a legal punishment. There would be an equally great outcry if corporal punishment were restored to the schools, giving men teachers the right to make it exceedingly unhealthy for overgrown and defiant hoodlums to get discipline and authority at school. Such a policy in the schools might well make the later punishment unnecessary. And such a policy in the home might make it unnecessary in the schools.

Flogging is painful. Flogging is humiliating. It lowers prestige, which is highly important to these young gangsters. Flogging penetrates even to the thick skin and the thicker mind of the hoodlum—and all these car thieves and killers are, after all, nothing but hoodlums. They are probably immune to the mild procedure of the courts. The whipping post is a different matter. I suggest that such punishment is at least worth trying. I believe that it will prove a far greater deterrent than the suspended sentence and the short term in the reformatory with probation always in the offing. The latter has obviously failed to work. The law might do the work.

Vandals Sought

A gang of young vandals was being investigated by Dorchester police today. They created a great disturbance on Redial road.

MRS. GRAY TO ADVOCATE TEACHERS' OATH BILL

Now is the time to curb Communism and Red activities.

The time has arrived when every loyal American should put his shoulder to the wheel to rid this country of subversive propaganda.

These were the remarks made today by Mrs. James Cunningham Gray, of Beacon street, back Bay society woman, in endorsing the teachers' oath bill.

Mrs. Cunningham said: "I can't see why anyone objects to taking the oath of allegiance to uphold the Constitution of the United States."

"I think it is only a simple request to ask anyone and at the same time it shows their loyalty. Now is the time for us to put our shoulder to the wheel and rid this nation of Communism and subversive propaganda."

"It surprised me yesterday afternoon during the hearing at the State House as I witnessed several members of the Communist party stand up and oppose the bill."

"Next Tuesday I shall attend the hearing and speak in behalf of the bill as well as several other Boston women who are interested in its passage."

The Boston Evening American

has been doing real patriotic work in working for the interest of the bill's passage."

LORDS FREE

Slayer of Wife

London, April 5 (INS)—The House of Lords today voted to free Reginald Woodington, 21, who killed his 17-year-old wife with a sawed-off shotgun.

Functioning as the supreme court of the land, the House sustained the decision of the Court of Criminal Appeal, which had decided that the killing was unintentional.

Woodington had been sentenced by a lower court to hang.

BOY'S CHARGES ARE DENIED BY PROF. DANA

Apparently bored, and closing a small black book with some reluctance, Professor Henry Wade Longfellow Dana pleaded not guilty today in Middlesex superior court to charges involving a 16-year-old Cambridge boy.

Professor Dana, for whom it was difficult to find a seat in the courtroom, although he was the defendant—waived reading of the indictment before Judge Nelson P. Brown.

His case was continued for trial and he was released in the same bonds set at the time of his arrest, $2000.

For more than five minutes before arraignment, the former Harvard professor read from the book with evident interest. He glanced up in apparent surprise when his name was called and his counsel, former City Solicitor Richard C. Overa of Cambridge, walked to his side.

The courtroom was crowded when Professor Dana arrived. Eventually he was seated in a corner bench among spectators and he immediately pulled out the little book. When Judge Brown arrived the Dana case was the first called.

Dana was arrested yesterday on a secret indictment. Charges against Professor Dana followed the seizure of four youths in a speeding car registered in Allston Dana, a first year student at Harvard Law. Professor Dana interceded for them.

One of the youths then was subjected to questioning. Later the grand jury returned secret indictments.

By MILES ALDEN

THE DEADLY DOWAGER—By Edna Greenwood—Doubleday, Doran.

The author may have passed a quiet childhood as chorister at King's College, Cambridge, but no trace of his serene youth is found in this mystery story.

Horror and humor are hard to combine, but Mr. Greenwood has blended them excellently in this tale of the "deadly dowager," Lady Arabella.

Lady Arabella delighted her relatives when she told them of her plan to restore the lost fortunes of the House of de Birken by ensuring their lives in favor of her heir—undoubtedly, that is, until she started murdering them with quiet ingenuity.

Arthur Machen in his introduction writes: "I have always been a romantic, and on the tortuous death by children's innocent was my voice. A highly recommended thriller."

THE CLICK ABROAD—By Tiffany Thayer—Doubleday, Doran.

This latest addition to the bookshelf labeled Tiffany Thayer is by far the most interesting.

Kay Denny, 28, unmarried but still hopeful, decides to leave her position as librarian in a small Iowa town for adventure and romance in Europe.

She abandons the tourist party at Marseilles and stows away aboard the yacht of a millionaire playboy. Between there and Cherbourg the impulsive librarian succeeds in diverting the playboy's attentions from his fiancée to herself.

The action shifts to Paris and for a time Kay seeks out the French dress designer, who had once visited the little Iowa town.

The close-up gives us a view of the playboy facing married life to sister.

Tiffany Thayer makes no pretence to be anything but entertaining and he has succeeded here in that accomplishment.

SEVEN PASTORS TRANSFERRED BY CARDINAL

Seven pastors are transferred and four curates are promoted to parish priests in the archdiocese of Boston by Cardinal O'Connor.

Announcements of the transfers and promotions will be made in the churches affected by the changes on Sunday.

The appointments and transfers are made to fill vacancies caused by the deaths of several parish priests during the past few months. One of the outstanding promotions is that of Rev. Dr. Louis F. Keller, for years a professor in St. John's Seminary, Brighton. He is to become pastor of St. John's Church, Canton.

Others affected by the transfers and promotions are:

Rev. Fr. John A. Sheehan, parish priest of the Church of the Sacred Heart, West Lynn, to become removable parish priest of the Church of Our Lady Help of Christians, Newton.

Rev. Fr. William J. Casey, parish priest of St. Patrick's Church, Roxbury, to become removable parish priest of St. Thomas Aquinas Church, Jamaica Plain.

Rev. Fr. Patrick H. Walsh, parish priest of St. Joseph's Church, Melpwood, to become parish priest of St. Francis Xavier's Church, South Weymouth.

Rev. Fr. James A. Herwin, parish priest of St. Thomas Aquinas Church, Bridgewater, to become parish priest of the Church of the Sacred Heart, West Lynn.

Rev. Fr. Walter J. Roche, parish priest of St. Bridget's Church, Maynard, to become parish priest of St. Patrick's Church, Roxbury.

Rev. Fr. Alfred J. MacDonald, parish priest of Our Lady Comforter at the Afflicted, Waltham, to become parish priest of St. Michael's Church, North Andover.

Rev. Fr. Hugh F. Smith, parish priest of St. John's Church, East Bridgewater, to become parish priest of St. Thomas Aquinas Church, Bridgewater.

Rev. Fr. John A. Coughlin, assistant at St. Peter's Church, Dorchester, promoted to become parish priest of St. Joseph's Church, Melpwood.

Rev. Fr. William D. Keenan, assistant at St. Columbkille Church, Brighton, promoted to become parish priest of St. John's Church, East Weymouth.

Rev. Fr. Edward P. Twigg, assistant at All Saints Church, Roxbury, promoted to become parish priest of Our Lady Comforter of the Afflicted, Waltham.

LABOR LEADERS NEW FIDELITY

By Universal Service

Washington, April 3.—The bitter conflict of a coal miners' strike is realistically portrayed in "Black Fury," a Warner Brothers production which is previewed here before a gathering of labor leaders and government officials.

Because of its stark presentation of the brutality that frequently accompanies strikes but is seldom brought home to a far away public, demands have arisen for censorship of the picture.

Tonight's audience, however, gave it a rousing reception. The story revolves about a husky and popular young "hunky" miner, who, stung by the faithlessness of his girl, becomes the duped of a detective agent seeking to foment a strike on his firm's coal supply strikebreakers.

Among those attending the preview were John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers; Sidney Hillman, president of the Ladies Garment Workers Union and member of the National Recovery board; and Assistant Secretary of Labor Edward P. McGrady.

MAP EXERCISES FOR DESTROYER

Patriots' Day has been set by the Navy Department as the time for placing in commission of the new 1060-ton destroyer Monaghan, built at the Charlestown Navy Yard at a cost of $3,300,000.

The Monaghan, the second destroyer of a group constructed at the navy yard, is named after Ensign John R. Monaghan, who was killed in Samoa in 1899.

Captain Harold E. Cook, acting commandant of the yard, will read the orders from the Navy Department at 11 o'clock on Friday, April 19, placing the ship in commission. He will then turn the ship over to Commander R. R. Thompson, who came here from the Naval Academy. The Monaghan will carry a crew of 116.

141 MILLION IN SEVEN YEARS AUTO INSURANCE COST

Here in the eleventh in a series of articles discussing abuses under the present compulsory auto insurance law

From 1927 to 1933 inclusive, Massachusetts auto owners paid a total of $141,572,255 for liability insurance made compulsory by state law.

The 1934 figures are not yet available.

During the same seven-year period the underwriting insurance companies listed a total of $102,564,115 under losses incurred. This includes both settled and unsettled claims.

What became of the $39,008,140 difference?

Was this profit for the companies?

Registrar Frank A. Goodwin estimates that in the eight years of compulsory insurance the companies spent $21,000,000 to acquire the business which they profit not to want. The tremendous sum of $15,000,000 for investigation of claims and $10,000,000 for administration of the business.

That is what the registrar means when he says the insurance companies, as well as the auto owners are victims of the law.

However, profits and losses to decided what's to be done about the present law for 1934.

There is a unanimous belief among auto owners in high-rate areas that something should be done.

SOME FIGURES

In attempting to arrive at a decision, the Legislature will have before it some significant figures. Among these will be the quadrupling since the law went in force, of the number of accidents in which occupants and driver claim injury. These totaled 9,441 in 1926, when there were 23,111 motor vehicles on the road and 30,187 in 1934 when there were 94,421.

Total claims in 1934 were about 490 more than total claims in 1933—indicating another rate increase next year if the present law is maintained.

In 1927 auto owners paid premiums totaling $16,618,808 and insurance companies reported losses of $1,140,000.

VICTIMS OF LAW

GOODWIN'S PLAN TO ELIMINATE FAKE CLAIMS -- & GREATLY REDUCE ANNUAL LOSSES

connection with the auto insurance business are more or less intangible because it is carried on in connection with other lines of insurance. Goodwin prefers no compulsory insurance to the present system, but a State fund compulsory insurance to no insurance.

One state-owned underwriting company which would take over the business now shared by 70 companies would, it is argued, reduce acquisition and administration costs by at least 50 per cent while providing quicker and better $100,000 and permit of a 20 to 25 per cent reduction in rates in the present high-rate zones.

If they were paid an annual salary of $1000 a year each, for a total of $200,000, and lived up to expectations in their work, the investment would be a profitable one.

In the meantime, however, the Legislature is working up to its annual debate on the problem and apparently no action will be taken on Goodwin's request until it is Right now, Goodwin plans to ask for 100 investigators for the registry. In theory they would investigate every motor accident immediately after police learned about it and their work would eliminate fake claims and prevent the development of exaggerated claims.

WORLDLY NOTES

If the plan worked out, their investigations would reduce annual losses by between $2,000,000 and $3,000,000. In 1934 premiums were $16,031,427 and losses $1,140,000.

In 1929 premiums were $12,971,130 and losses $1,629,192.

In 1930 premiums were $21,373,888 and losses were $1,773,214.

In 1931 premiums were $22,808,003 and losses were $1,537,478.

In 1932 premiums were $23,240,080 and losses were $1,844,562.

In 1933 premiums were $21,903,918 and losses were $1,572,508.

'NOBODY WANTS ME' GIRL SEES BLUES COME TRUE

Los Angeles, April 5—"Nobody wants me," sang Helen Morgan—and became famous.

Today's day of fame for Helen Morgan, the singer, began when she sang "Nobody wants me" at the Hollywood Bowl. Her performance was a triumph, and she has since become a star.

From the first day of her fame, she has been the subject of much speculation. "I really never had a chance to get acquainted with my husband," she once said. "I was so busy with my career that I had no time for anything else."

BOSTON HONORS ARMY DAY WITH CEREMONY TOMORROW

In army posts throughout the nation, Army Day will be observed with ceremonies tomorrow, the 18th anniversary of the declaration of war by the United States.

Army posts in New England have been asked by Major General Fox Connor, commanding general of the First Corps Area, to provide for the celebration of the day and to participate in ceremonies arranged by the various civilian patriotic organizations in the area.

Post 1000 will have morning parade at Fort Wright near New London, Conn., at 10 o'clock, featuring inspection of the post and band concert will be held.

TWO-DAY OBSERVANCE

As a tribute to Boston's two-day observance, Lieutenant Fordham Kimball, commander of Boston Chapter, Military Order of the World War, which recently has been organized, has arranged a radio broadcast on W.B.Z. from 8 to 10 o'clock. The broadcast will be broadcast from the headquarters of the organization, 100 State street, at 9 o'clock. It will feature a review of the history of the organization, a list of its members, and a list of its achievements. It will also feature a list of the names of the members of the organization who have been killed in the war.

TALK ON ARMAMENT

The talk will be directed particularly to the subject of "Moral and Burning Questions of Armament" that are concerning the citizen, and will deal with the present state of the armament and the need for adequate national defense.

The regular army, the national guard, the Boy and Girl Scouts and many other similar organizations are participating in the M. O. W. W. celebration which is being held in Boston Arena on Sunday at 2 p. m.

Headed by the list of distinguished guests are the Hon. J. C. Sweeney, Mayor of Boston, and the Hon. J. C. Sweeney, Mayor of Boston, and the Hon. J. C. Sweeney, Mayor of Boston.

Major Stuart G. Hall, vice commander of the Boston chapter, M. O. W. W., will be in charge of the parade and Lieutenant Kimball will preside.

2 CLUBS SHARE REVERE TRACK

Wonderland Park will be the site of the new Revere Beach dog racing track, which starts construction Monday.

George Funk, president of the Bay State Greyhound Association and he refused to get excited about pending opposition to dog racing. He declared:

"We are going right ahead with building plans and we will show a public which has never seen dog racing that there is nothing wrong with it."

The Bay State track will have a 22-night season, beginning May 1. On the same track the Old Harbor Kennel Club will operate a 21-night season.

Lighton and West Springfield have been licensed for a total of 72 nights, leaving but 23 more available under the law.

Since promoters could not profit by a 25-night season, it is expected that no more licenses will be asked this year.

Next Tuesday morning, when a Supreme court injunction expires, the Racing Commission may grant horse racing licenses, if permitted.

KANE'S TO OFFER Radio Programs

New England's radio audience is in for a new program beginning next week.

Each Monday and Friday night Kane's Furniture Co. will present Kane's Radio Theatre over station WHDH. The program is scheduled for 7 to 8 p. m.

Lieutenant Nelson hosts an advertisement of nationally known actors. A total of 26 broadcasts have been arranged for by the Kane company.

GIRL NEARLY Misses Cruise

A pretty Newtonville girl nearly missed enjoying her planned 21-day vacation cruise today.

Miss Hilda S. Nelson, of Walnut street, was scheduled to sail on the steamship Lady Somers for a southern cruise. She arrived at Commonwealth pier just as the gangplank was being pulled up.

The girl hailed Captain James M. Rath, who ordered the gangplank pulled aboard again.

Police Nab Pair

The men arrested today at the rear of a delinquent area on 311 Dorchester street, Roxbury, were to be arraigned on charges of breaking and entering.

SULLIVAN OUT In New Court Order

A writ was issued today by Judge David I. Bond in Superior Court, removing the order of Judge Bond removing Sullivan from the bench. The order was issued by Judge Bond in response to a writ of habeas corpus issued by Judge Bond in response to a writ of habeas corpus issued by Judge Bond.

Doctors Speed Knife for Jim

Boy Eager for Abdominal Operation Tomorrow

Fall River, April 5.—Smiling Jimmy Nelson, "upside-down" stomach boy, will be operated on at 11 a. m. tomorrow, it was announced today at Trussell Hospital.

In a bulletin issued with the announcement, Dr. Paulsen, Jr., Trussell, reviewed the results of an X-ray examination which showed Jimmy's stomach as in about the same condition as that of Alice Jane McKinley before her successful operation.

Dr. Trussell announced he would begin his operation at intervals until after the operation. Today's bulletin said: "X-ray examinations show a diaphragmatic hernia on the left side. The large and small organs fill the lower part of the left chest, pushing the left lung upward and displacing the heart to the right side. 'The stomach is greatly enlarged and except for the upper portion lies in the abdomen. All of the small organs and most of the large are in the chest cavity.' Jimmy was eager for his operation and said the 'sooner it's over, the sooner I'll be playing ball again.' Alice has been cheering and encouraging Jimmy ever since his arrival.

A SAFE PLACE TO SAVE

HEAVEN HIGH HELL DEEP By Norman Archibald

Friends Killed as Planes Collide

Six months after the United States declared war I was one of the lucky ones ordered abroad. At Issoudun, without any previous training, I started learning to fly the Neuponts, fastest and most dangerous of our planes. We talked, dreamed flying high and fast. A new pilot was killed, but his death didn't end my love for flying. Then suddenly Beauchamp and I were ordered to report to the First Pursuit Group. I was assigned to a beautiful new plane, a Spad, and a German pilot captured. Ordered out to fly low and fast into the enemy's trenches, my friend, Beauchamp, was killed. I was heartbroken. Bill Russell, a daring flyer, was always getting scolded for leaving the formation and flying by himself. One terrible morning I saw a bunch of Fokkers dive at him. He was killed. His death was a tragedy. His death was a tragedy. His death was a tragedy.

How different our viewpoints. Climbing into my plane I thought: "When I go over the top it will be twenty thousand feet over," and content with my lot rose into the air to fly rear left in a group of five with Bruce and Smythe, the sixth and seventh planes, back and above.

Crossing the lines a few clearly defined white clouds hung just above our level. The formation was tight. Continual maneuvering and manometric adjustments were necessary to maintain proper position. At eighteen thousand feet my constant glances showed Bruce and Smythe hovering close by.

Tac-tac-tac-tac... the grim message of enemy guns spinning destruction.

Tac-tac-tac-tac-tac-tac... Twisting my neck I glanced back. Two Fokkers were rushing upon us. Streams of smoke streaked toward our formation. Bruce and Smythe were in the direct path of this deadly lead salvo.

Simultaneously and with the same instinctive movements they dove to swoop down under our group of five and draw the attacking Fokkers beneath us.

A sickly thud! Horror of horrors! They had collided! Diving to help us, they smashed—in each other.

We turned and, firing, raked the air behind the downing Fokkers. Scouting away, back, drove to the distance, then, low in banking behind the clouds.

The plane of Bruce and Smythe hung in the air. Quivering, they tried valiantly to maintain their lofty position in the thin electric living things, reluctant to meet.

in the air, fly close by—his companion in death.

The Chateau Thierry show was over.

The final curtain down; each completed; the scenery shifted and trappings sent to a new location.

As August drew through, verbal and telegraphic instructions, we received orders relieving us from duty with the French.

The first day of September, trucks took the equipment and pilots' baggage to a new field at Remboucourt, about three miles northwest of Barle-Duc on the St. Mihiel sector.

While our Infantry, in the great Marine offensive, drove back the Germans, the First Pursuit Group were pitted against the most experienced and skillful squadrons of Germany's victorious Pursuit Group.

At all times, we maintained a steady barrage over the enemy. Heavy indeed were our losses. Many of our best pilots, the most daring, courageous and proficient in the art of aerial combat, met their end.

order to carry such ammunition, in principle reserved to the attack balloons.

He also declared that English and French aviators fallen in enemy lines have been shot for carrying incendiary bullets, and not having a written order to attack balloons.

All German pilots made prisoners have with them an order stating that all incendiary ammunition must be used only to attack balloons and must not be used in attacking other planes.

Consequently the following order was issued:

The English give also a similar order to pilots carrying Buckingham bullets. Although they have not been verified that English or French pilots have been shot for having incendiary bullets, without special orders, it is necessary hereafter to give an order similar to the one in operation.

No. 30 to all pilots with instructions to attack balloons.

Operational order No. 31 of incendiary ammunition must not be used except for attacking captives or dirigible balloons.

To clear the skies of enemy aircraft must fight according to air etiquette and politely obey a certain code.

To get our man we must use regulation bullets and, if an occasion demanded incendiary bullets, carry on order authorizing their use.

To break the law of aerial propriety was punishable by death.

The regulation seemed absurd such a far-fetched, precautionary measure was taken with a grain of salt.

What pilot, flying and fighting daily, would stop each morning to get a signed, dated piece of paper in case a complicated incident or remote chance in thousands, might occur?

By better about a slip of paper written in a microscopic combination of non-volatile script happened.

Not to attack a balloon: to be captured by your opponent, to fall on German territory, in the open presence, to keep alive, you could finish your paper, or not.

We were at it.

My first flight on this new sector was made over the region of Mont-Vignolles and that same afternoon aviators were called for a balloon-rafting expedition.

They attacked a balloon without results.

But when a car squadron flew a high patrol over Waterville-St. Maure, that same afternoon, the day thereafter we flew permanent hourly patrols at 15,000 feet over the field from 8 a. m. until dark to prevent the enemy from photographing our aerodrome.

Tomorrow the author will tell about the time he crashed the flight which always remain a mystery. Don't miss any chapter of this exciting story in the American.

'05 AUTO PICTURES ENTERED IN OLD-TIME CONTEST

Pictures of automobiles from as far back as 1905 have been received by the Old-Time Automobile Editor and the contest which opens Monday promises to be a great success.

Winners of the contest will be announced at the spring showing of the General Motors in Memorial Building on the night of April 12.

Prizes totaling $200 will be awarded. The committee chosen to select the best old-time photos includes Frank M. Goodwin, registrar of motor vehicles, C. S. Henshaw, manager of Noyes Buick Sales Company, and George Grimm, promotional manager of the Boston Evening American.

The spring showing of General Motors models will be held in the Grand Hall of Mechanics Building from April 6 to April 12, inclusive. For the best old-time photo, the winner will receive $100; $50 will be second prize; $25 for third; $10 for fourth and $10 for fifth.

The public is invited to attend the spring showing. An admission fee of 10 cents, which will be turned over to the Emergency Relief Fund, will be charged. Start digging around the attic and in your family album. See if you can find any old-time auto photos. Send them to the Old-Time Automobile Editor, 5 Winthrop square, Boston. Your old-time auto photo may be one of the lucky winners.

TWO 'LOOPERS' PLEAD GUILTY IN WILD CHASE

Two out of five Charleston youths who successfully weathered police snare during an automobile pursuit from Cambridge to Medford pleaded guilty today in East Cambridge court to larceny of a automobile.

The pleas were made despite the contention earlier this week at a Charleston city court, that persons who take someone else's car can be charged only with unlawful appropriation, a misdemeanor.

Police Commissioner McSwane, State Public Safety Commissioner, and Registrar Goodwin conferred following the Charleston city decision in the evening of a new law making the taking of another's car a charge of larceny.

The case of Francis L. Poirer, 18, of Main street, Charleston, and John J. Lys, 17, of Small street, Somerville, who pleaded guilty were continued until April 15.

Two of the five will be arraigned in juvenile court.

The fifth is a Lawrence Memorial Hospital Medford suffering a possible skull fracture suffered in the crash.

The five were arrested after one of the motor cars that Medford and Cambridge police have experienced.

More than 60 shots were fired by five persons from revolvers and sawed off shot guns.

The chase began in Winthrop square, Medford.

The chase turned into Main street, heading for Charleston.

Here the roadway has been an ice construction for some time and the poor condition of the road and the high speed when the automobile was traveling caused the driver to lose control of the machine.

LAUDS HEARST ALICE EXPOSE

By Universal Service

New York April 5. Praising the expose of the breakdown in enforcement of the immigration laws made by the Hearst newspaper, the state Chamber of Commerce urged impeachment of Department of Labor officials who have been derelict in duty.

The action of the state chamber followed the presentation of a resolution by John R. Trevor, chairman of the special committee on immigration and naturalization. The resolution was adopted unanimously by the more than 100 members present.

After citing the figures reported by the Hearst paper, showing the sharp drop in deportals that followed the advent of the present Department of Labor administration, the report of the special committee stated:

Thanks to the courage and enterprise of the Hearst newspaper, a careful and detailed examination of the records of alleged hardship cases are being laid before the public.

GLOUCESTER SHIP Pulled Off Beach

Cuttyhunk, April 5 (AP).—The Gloucester, Maine, schooner Florence K. was pulled off Cuttyhunk Beach today by a coast guard surf boat after she ran aground.

The coast guard said Captain Joseph Patton of the Florence K. apparently had mistaken a buoy on the end of Cuttyhunk Island for a buoy for the schooner's tugboat.

The schooner, with 14 aboard, was on the way to Cape May.

MORRO CASTLE Called "Fire Trap"

Washington, April 5 (AP).—Lawrence R. Wilder, a shipbuilder, declared before the Senate subcommittee today the Morro Castle was a "fire trap" but it might easily have been built so there would have been "no necessity for loss of life."

Wilder employed a graphic chart to illustrate his declaration about the Morro Castle.

SOMMER DEATH Suspect Freed

Jack Lewis, 32, of Brooklyn, N. Y., today was freed by Boston police after he acted in connection with the slaying of Adolph Sommer, 30-year-old Cambridge inventor.

Lewis appeared in police lineup today while half a dozen witnesses to the Sommer murder looked him over. None could identify him.

Truck Hits Tree

William A. Whitehouse, 39, of Glasgow street, Rockland, oil truck driver, narrowly escaped death today when his truck crashed into a tree and overturned on Route 3, near North Pembroke square.

Howard Sports Styles

will bring Spring into your wardrobe

The NASSAU

One of the many sports models developed with extra inverted plait v-neck, back, and half belt, patch pockets with inverted plait. You'll agree... it's smart!

The well dressed man has definitely decided, there will be color (and plenty of it) diversity of style, good taste and individuality, for the various occasions of sport, this spring and summer. It is for that reason that we have devoted a greater measure of attention to our sports suits.

We have made these styles... Smart! Colorful! Full of freedom and finesse! The fabrics include everything from the rough rugged weaves to the fine soft textured flannels and smooth fine-lined worsteds and gabardines. Patterns... a world of them. Small checks, large checks and overchecks. Plaid effects, diamond weaves, chalk stripes, novelty weaves and plain colors. These styles will gain your attention the moment you see them... they will bring spring into your wardrobe.

We suggest that you visit Howard's tomorrow to select your spring and Easter outfit.

HOLLYWOOD GOSSIP

Marlene Dietrich, Gary Cooper Given Leads

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS

Los Angeles, April 5.—Marlene Dietrich, who ever since she came to Hollywood has depended upon Josef Von Sternberg's advice in her pictures, was like a ship without a rudder when she was told Ernst Lubitsch would not direct her.

Marlene Dietrich, who ever since she came to Hollywood has depended upon Josef Von Sternberg's advice in her pictures, was like a ship without a rudder when she was told Ernst Lubitsch would not direct her.

Curiously enough Marlene must always have someone to advise her, for she seems unwilling to stand on her own two feet. She had to talk fast for she was all ready to throw her pet a mountain contract into the fire when she learned that she could not direct her.

She is worried over her next director, but she has chosen her next picture. She will have Gary Cooper costarring with her.

There has been an avalanche of screen pictures showing how federal officers work in tracking down gangs, but it has remained for Columbia to make the first first-women picture, showing how the women in the employ of the government operate. Harry Cobb's "Woman's War" is the lead. Scott Darling is the author of the story which is being adapted by Albert Demand and Fred Niblin, Jr., with Al Rogoff directing.

Arthur Hornblow, Jr., gets himself a nice little trip to England all on account of Rudyard Kipling's refusal to allow any of his plays or verses to be filmed without his approval. Arthur leaves Hollywood April 21 with

It might help the people of California to understand the position of the motion picture people better if Louis R. Mayer would send out a copy of the speech he made Wednesday morning at the breakfast club. Those of us who listened to the radio broadcast when we were unable to get to the meeting were delighted with L. B.'s logic, reasoning and common sense. He told the Breakfast Club that he would want to move, that he loved California and he explained that the huge salaries reported paid to the film stars are only a temporary thing and greatly exaggerated. "Their fame is fleeting and their earning capacity of very short duration," said L. B.

Chatter in Marian Marsh: The beautiful Marian Marsh, she of the dimples and blonde hair, is the object of Frederick Perry's affections these days. Perry, who is the English tennis champion, created a great stir among the females of the film colony and he has been seen here, there and everywhere with many of our feminine film stars. Now he is concentrating on Marian and he is said to have fallen hook, line and sinker for the pretty little blonde for whom Howard Hughes was ready to pay good money for his bachelor days a few months ago.

PAGEANT MARKS Pan-American Day

A pageant commemorating Pan-American day, the first pageant of its kind to be presented in the town, will be given in front of high school next Thursday afternoon and Friday evening.

Miss Lilla C. Adams will direct the performances. Mrs. Harold Towditch, director of the recent "Land-a-Hand" pageant, has charge of the stage direction.

Brookline high students will comprise the cast in a series of ten tableaux and dance representations of the progressive development of the American.

Half of Man's Brain Gone But He Still Carries On

By Associated Press

Cleveland, April 5.—The wonders of the human brain, and possibly the processes of thought themselves, are shown from a new angle by brain surgery reported to the American College of Surgeons here by Winchell M. Craig, M. D., of the Mayo clinic.

The entire half of a brain has been removed and the other half has passed on the extra lobes and survived.

Half of the front of the brain, where the higher faculties, such as reasoning, are located, was removed. It was found to be essential, not only for the control of the body, but for the control of the mind.

These are not the ordinary cases of epilepsy, where the removal of a portion of the brain is necessary to prevent seizures. In this case, the removal of the brain was necessary to prevent a fatal brain tumor.

The patient, a 35-year-old man, was operated on by Dr. Winchell M. Craig, M. D., of the Mayo clinic, and Dr. J. P. Mohr, M. D., of the Cleveland Clinic.

The patient is now recovering from the operation and is expected to be discharged in a few days.

Woman Says Homes Wrecked by Labor-Saving Gadgets

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

"MODERN labor-saving apartments are wrecking homes."

No less an authority than the Church of England advisory board makes this statement. On this side of the Atlantic you can make it what you please.

But Miss Jane E. Higgin of that board, who has been making a survey of London and other large English cities, is very gloomy over the gadgets which enable a young wife to have so much character-destroying leisure on her hands.

The question has been taken up by club women on this side of the Atlantic, who repudiate the charge, and who say that as over 4,000,000 American women are supporting dependent households, the more labor-saving devices they have the better.

For women who have to go out and work for the bacon, there is no doubt that it is unthinkable that housework should not be made as easy as it is possible to make it.

It's the further contention of clubwomen in the good manor that women who spend their leisure time over their sewing machines are not concerned with labor-saving devices, as those women are in the higher income bracket class and keep servants.

UNHAPPY SOLUTION

To return to Miss Higgin's report to Church of England authorities, she is quoted as saying: "A girl who leaves her home and neighborhood and friends and has to live in a tiny, labor-saving flat, is one of the most isolated and lonely persons imaginable. Such isolation and loneliness can give rise to much unhappiness in early married life."

The proportion of women who maintain independent households is much less in England than in this country, and gadgets over there may be more of a menace than on this side of the Atlantic. An attempt to turn over greater leisure into more profitable channels may be seen in the Adult Educational movement, now under way in our larger American cities.

Women who have married before they have completed high school educations are handicapped in later life, when forced to earn a living for themselves and their children, due to a lack of foundation.

ADULT EDUCATION
Naturally, one cannot be a stenographer or typist unless one knows how to spell and punctuate. Nor can she be a cashier, unless she knows how to add and make change correctly. Nor can she fill a routine office job without the necessary equipment.

Adult education undertakes to lay the foundation for the gains which result from having left school at too early an age.

The response to this idea about life has been tremendous, and William Hudson, Commissioner of the State Welfare of New York, has announced the appointment of John H. Hearn, of New York, for the adult education project, recently turned over to the State to be operated under the joint auspices of the board of education and works division of ZERA.

Whether there is an adult education movement on foot in England, which would bear out the admonition of Dr. Watts that "Idleness is the worst enemy a man has," is not mentioned by Miss Higgin in her report.

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX

Cupid didn't really mistake me until I was almost 40 when I married the one and only man who is 15 years younger than myself. This is an ideal wife, a perfect mother, the best of housekeepers, and I have more happiness than I desire. But how many sometimes for the slighest shadow of my bachelorhood?

When I strow newspapers about, come to the table in my dressing gown and slippers, leave my slippers around, my wife never looks at them. But she always tries to make the children neat when they are alone in the study. If there were only room enough in the apartment for me to have a cubby-hole in which I could be as messy and untidy as I please it would solve this problem. I am beginning to get on my nerves.

BACHELOR HUSBAND

It's a strain for a bachelor husband to live up to the standards of a thoroughly tidy young wife. But think of the good compensation. Your wife refers to you as an adored father, and she has remained a bachelor, you would probably be as handsome as you were untidy.

Just ask her to let you have an occasional slipper and a dressing gown evening. If she's sensible, she'll agree to this.

Which Type of Man Appeals to You?

FOURTH—THE SOLDIER

"THERE'S SOMETHING ABOUT A SOLDIER" ... I must confess there is. Many a woman has chosen rather to be poor and room, with a soldier—knowing many homes—every child born in a different place than to wear mink with a business man. Any man, of course, is glorified by the uniform—girls and men have found that out since the days of armor. But there is a true soldierly type that rises before our feminine minds—heroes. "Black Jack" Pershing is a living portrait of this type—hard-bitten, clean-cut, but singularly kind and mild and gentlemanly under the harness and glitter.

SPRING SURPRISE SALAD

Perhaps you already know that eggs are at their best in the spring—fresh and delicate in flavor, an ideal ingredient for distinctive salads.

In the salad pictured, the eggs are glorified by a delicious surprise stuffing. Then they are served in a bed of shredded lettuce, garnished with curly chives. A special spring dressing that is quickly made gives them a finishing touch. A stunning salad if ever there was one! You can serve it frequently for Easter and afterwards—and win praise every time.

How to Make It
4 hard-boiled eggs
2 1/2 cups shredded lettuce
1/2 cup shredded chives
1/2 cup shredded carrots
1/2 cup shredded celery
1/2 cup shredded onion

French Lavender Old-Style Fragrances Are Back

By JEREMY SHAWLEY

DEFINITE indications show that women are reverting to the ultra-feminine.

One outstanding sign is the rapidly growing popularity of perfumed toilet waters and lavender perfumes. And when they come in exquisite bottles of frosted glass and encrusted with designs of small stars, it's little wonder we rhapsodize.

If you are one who loves the delicate and unusual in fragrance, you will be delighted with a newcomer of French lavender. It is a toilet water so concentrated that it may be used as perfume.

It seems can best be described as being a rather less effusive version of lavender than some. Where most lavender is fresh and zesty, this one seems a little more on the romantic side. The maker of this French lavender is famous for his colognes and his gowns, and is credited, as a matter of fact, with bringing the old-fashioned fragrance back to popularity.

It will be difficult to resist using it on your latest hanky, or tucking it behind your ears and on your wrist when you are wearing a new chiffon negligee. It is almost unbelievably refreshing and a divine disinfectant in the wash basin will do wonders for disinfecting that tired feeling when you are bathing.

To learn the name of this exquisite lavender toilet water which is so concentrated as to be almost a perfume, call Miss Shelly, Liberty 4000, or write to the Boston office of the American, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

An Orchid

AN ORCHID is not just a flower. An orchid is that most beautiful of all flowers, and women who love them learn to know them by name and type.

Wear your orchids to their own and your best advantage. They should never be worn upside down. Always wear them so that one looks directly into them. Do not allow the petals to droop down. That the rich coloring of their throats is lost. Don't pin them on hastily or carelessly because if they take almost 30 years to produce your Easter bouquet, you can't afford to let them be in the right relation to your face and neckline.

The Easter orchid, Oncidium, has a faint, fine perfume. Don't use it unless you wish to spoil the fragrance of this exotic flower.

Answer. After cleansing smooth whichever preparation you prefer over the neck, working with both hands from the upper chest up to the chin. Your hands should circle the neck, pressing, smoothing gently upward along the throat column. Repeat with alternating hands. Grace Moore, singer and motion picture star, uses a special touch, smoothing gently up to her throat and lovely. It fills out hollows and keeps the skin free of wrinkles. FLOYD GIBBONS' PAGE OF THRILLS AND MYSTERY

"Human Icicle"

Sailor in Danger Clings to Life With Slippery Hands and a Quaking Heart

By FLOYD GIBBONS

HELLO, EVERYBODY!

Here's a story, fellow adventurers, of a young Danish lad who went to sea looking for thrills, and found them—on his first job—before the boat he was on even got out of sight of land. He is Frederick Dillensen, of 401 1/2 N. 8th avenue, Mount Vernon, N. Y., and the first adventure Fred ran into came so near being his last that it's a wonder he ever went near a boat again.

But he did. Six months later, he was back to seafaring again—looking for more thrills—finding them. Fred was born in a small Danish fishing town. All through his childhood he played with boats, and his life's ambition was to become a sea captain and rove the seas like the Vikings of old—those hardy mariners of the northern waters from whom Fred is descended. He started his sea-faring career at the age of 14, getting a job as a deck boy on a small schooner.

It was a thrilling moment for Fred the day he walked aboard that little schooner, a real sailor in a real sailor's job. The world of adventure was opening up before him. But if Fred could have known the nature of the ordeal he was soon to undergo, he wouldn't have been so pleased at the prospect of adventuring.

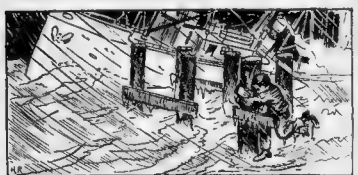

The one thing about his new job that asked Fred was that the schooner he was working on never went out of the harbor at Aarhus. A new pier was being built down at the waterfront, and the schooner was helping with the work. Each morning it would go out in the harbor in a spot where the water was shallow and the bottom rocky, and dredge up stones to carry in to the workmen on the pier.

All day long the crew would haul up rocks from the bottom, putting in to shore at nightfall to unload the stones they had gathered.

Fred was anxious to see that job finished—impatient to get out of there—to see some of the world besides the shores at Aarhus harbor, and maybe run into an adventure or two. At the age of 14 Fred didn't know, as many an older man than he doesn't know, that adventure comes to you. You don't have to go out looking for it.

One evening, late in November, the little schooner didn't go to shore until after dark. It was too late to unload the stones it had brought in, so she anchored in the harbor, a hundred yards or so away from the pier.

It was a little risky, anchoring so close to shore, for the harbor was an open one, affording little or no shelter, and the wind came in the wrong direction, but the skipper, after taking a look at the sky, decided that the weather was favorable and the schooner would be safe until morning.

But that's where the skipper was wrong. For once in his life he misjudged the weather. During the night a snow storm blew up. A heavy wind began sweeping across the harbor, and about 4 o'clock in the morning a wave came along that picked up the little boat, snapped both anchor cables and carried it up against the pier.

There were only three men on the boat at the time—the skipper, an able seaman, and Fred. Fred never saw the other two men alive. They went down with the schooner when it smashed to bits against the stone sides of that half-finished pier. Fred himself had barely time to get on deck and, as he overboard before the boat went down. He landed in the icy water and struck out for the shore.

The shore was only a few yards away. If it had been more Fred wouldn't have lived in till the tale. That ice-cold water chilled the very marrow of his bones.

As it was, he barely managed to make the end of the pier, where great piles had been driven into the harbor bottom to support the planking, before a sickening numbness came over his body.

Fred knew he couldn't make it to the shore. He reached out for the nearest pile and hung on to it. Somehow he managed to climb up out of the water, and there he clung, soaking wet, chilled by the icy blast that was sweeping across the harbor—wondering how long it would be before he lost his precarious hold and slipped back into the water.

He shouted for help, but nobody heard him. The waterfront was deserted. The only two other men within hailing distance were the skipper and the A. B., dead in the water below. He muttered a prayer and clung tighter to the slippery pile.

An hour went by. The water had frozen on his body—was dripping in icicles from the soles of his shoes. He was weakening rapidly now—his body was so numb that he didn't feel the cold—scarcely felt the ache in his arms that came from clinging to the pole. But he hung on, waiting—praying—hoping that help would come before it was too late.

It was another hour—an hour of increasing weakness—of agonizing fear—before help did come. It was 6 o'clock in the morning before workmen coming down to their jobs on the pier saw a stiff, ice-covered body clinging to one of the outermost piles of the uncompleted dock.

They got him ashore—look him up to a hospital. It was six months before Fred was able to tackle another job.

Well, sir, there goes another 10 bucks. But doggone if I begrudge it to a bird who has gone through two hours of freezing on a pole a hundred feet out in the water. What's more, I don't begrudge a single one of the hundreds of 10-dollar notes I am passing out. As a matter of fact, I am doggone anxious to do it. So send in your stories, boys and girls.

Be with me tomorrow for "Red Sea Honor."

$10.00 EVERY DAY and $100.00 EVERY MONTH is what Floyd Gibbons will pay American readers to prove that more thrilling and interesting TRUE adventures happen in YOUR life and in the lives of your friends than anything fiction writers can invent. And Floyd will prove it every day on this page. The famous war correspondent's own life is filled with adventure. He was wounded in "No Man's Land," torpedoed in mid-Atlantic and rode with Death in the Sahara, but he wants to write YOUR story now. Send it in to him today. There are no conditions. Everyone is eligible.

MEXICO'S NEW LEADER BACKS CATHOLICS

By International News Service
Mexico City, April 5.—A strong man of Mexico, General S. Portes-Arriz, lord of the political scene here, will be the new power behind the throne in Mexico, according to General Plutarco Calles, former president of the country, who has been in power since 1928.

All Mexico has been waiting for the day when Calles would leave the presidency to a younger man, and when the Catholic Church, which has been persecuted for years, would be able to function normally.

President Calles, who has been in power since 1928, is now in his 70th year, and his health is failing. He has been in the hospital for several weeks, and his absence from the presidency has been a source of speculation.

General Portes-Arriz, who is 55 years old, is a strong supporter of the Catholic Church, and he is expected to bring about a new era of religious freedom in Mexico.

HUGE TAX JUMP IN PENSION ACT

(Copyright, 1935, by the Associated Press.)

Washington, April 5.—Official estimates that the social security bill would mean $200,000,000 in new taxes in 1937 and a maximum of $1,500,000,000 in 1939 brought new energy today to the fight over the measure.

The figures were prepared by House ways and means committee experts.

Republicans urged upon them, providing new support for the contention that the bill puts too heavy a burden on business.

Republicans on the committee issued over ten figures preliminary to a conference of the 103 C. O. P. House members tonight.

They indicated that if possible they would try to eliminate the taxes, reduce them or postpone their effective dates.

The measure levies two types of taxes on payrolls: One for contributory old-age annuities and one for unemployment insurance.

The old-age taxes start at 2 per cent on January 1, 1937, half paid by the employer and half paid by the employee and rise 1 per cent each three years to a total of 6 per cent on January 1, 1943.

The unemployment insurance tax, also on payrolls, is all paid by employer and begins at 1 per cent on January 1, 1938, and increase 1 per cent a year to 3 per cent on January 1, 1938.

Reds Rampant in Schools, Says Commander Twomey

Lawrence, April 5.—"Communism is rampant in the schools of Boston and in several other cities of the Commonwealth."

This was the charge made by Jeremiah J. Twomey, state commander of the American Legion, before 200 guests at the annual celebration of the Lawrence Legion Auxiliary in the Lawrence street Congregational Church.

The state commander vigorously denounced the teachers' union bill, asserting that many teachers "have American money, while teaching un-American doctrine."

Mrs. Katherine Clark, president of the state department of the American Legion Auxiliary, added her indorsement to the teachers' union bill. She said: "I firmly believe that every teacher should have the flag in her classroom, and that she should take the oath of allegiance."

Commander Twomey declared: "It is a fight and it has taken on all the aspects of a fight. I am aware that only a small percentage of teachers are radical, but I believe that the union bill would need the ones who take American money while overtly preaching un-American doctrine."

"Communism is rampant in the schools of Boston and in several other cities of the Commonwealth."

ROCKINGHAM TO STABLE 1200 HORSES

AUSTEN LAKE on

Braves, Jordan

May

Make Peace

Pre-war buildings of rusty brick line the downtown streets of Fayetteville, N. C., where today the Braves break their homcoming to meet a native son.

There flat-bottomed cargo steamers churn the shallows of Cape Fear river to load cotton, turps, tar and yams. And there the local boosters committee is greeting our athletes with a silver cornet band to play them around the town plaza in a grand parade of welcome.

Sixty miles to the East, over piney slopes and past blossoming peach orchards and fertile vineyards, lies the farm hamlet of Salisbury, where rustic folk whistle in sunshine as warm and sticky as the golden honey for which the region is famed. And there, with his gentle lady, dwells Baxter Jordan, an exile from the Braves' salary

WAR.

So today, being geographically adjacent, I suspect that Jordan will wheel over the hills to hold a drumhead conference with Sweet William McKechnie, the Braves' manager, and maybe mend his ways wrangle to climb onto the Braves' Pullman when it rolls North tonight for Norfolk, Va.

Patch for Braves' Leak

I FANCY THIS, BECAUSE SWEET WULLIE is getting worry wrinkles over his first base riddle, where Babe Ruth is doing stuff, stomach hands and knee-wobblers.

McKechnie being a sensitive artist, is not apt to present his troops to his Boston patrons two weeks hence as a carnival travesty on baseball's sacred science.

If not today, then soon, McKechnie must summon Jordan and say, "Let's see, where were we when Judge Fuchs lost his temper?" And bit by bit, with a shaving here and a clipping there, the boys will come to mutual terms.

If Jordan is not reconciled, and the Braves' first base job is handed over to Babe or to Sandy Moore, then both games and customer interest are going to leak through the spot and cost the club's treasury many times the $1500 increase Jordan asks. This is simple sense, not sticky sentiment.

Eskie to Lafayette?

FOR YEARS HENRY W. CLARK, called "Eskie" because he was originally a snow-baby from Alaska, has been vice-commander of Harvard's athletics.

Big-boned, tawny-haired, with a laugh like a Yukon sled-dog's yammer, Eskie has assisted Bill Bingham, studiously, competently, courteously.

And now Lafayette College, needing a grade-A mascot to pilot its athletics out of the woodpile, is yoo-hooing sweetheart calls for Eskie, please to come down to Easton, Pa., and take charge.

A Presbyterian college that sits on a sheer precipice above the Delaware river and draws from the sons of Lehigh's happy valley, Eskie would find a fertile field for his practiced hand.

It is an old-fashioned college for lads with calloused palms, a middle class institution with ancient, ivy-mantled traditions and a hard-shell athletic history.

As one who drank neither wisely nor too well from its moss-covered, cultured bucket, I know Eskie.

There now, Spring is painting the countryside with pastel greens. The timber-headed Peconics wear a veil of purple haze.

Ask Richard Oreson Harlow, the new Harvard football coach. He nests in the Peconics during the summer.

Scene Shifting at the Garden

SATURDAY NIGHT the half-inch skin of hockey ice will be scraped off the Boston Garden's rink. Hockey curfew comes with the final Boston Cubs-Providence Reds game.

Monday the Garden's floormen will start setting the wooden crates and canvas shell for the great indoor pond which is the feature of the Guides' meeting on April 11.

Baby balsams, first and cypress will fringe the pool. The scene will be a sylvan section of Maine grafted on a city skin.

Soon after the woody murmurs and forest odors of the Guides' show have been swept out, Peterborough, N. B., where the ideal flooring of earth and tankard. The rafters will be rigged with aerial gear. Ward freaks and wild animals will clutter the back tunnels.

Two days after the circus vacates, the arena floor will be polished like a tap-room bar. Potted palms and easy chairs will run the floor, where dainty ladies and tuxedo dudes will spend the evening dancing.

Few buildings in the world have the quick change, face-lifting facilities of the big soup tureen atop the B. & M. depot, which passes overnight from rowdy-tough to parlor-polite.

Colonel's Peacocks

FANCY COLONEL JAKE RUPPERT, owner of the Le-man Yankee ball club, turning assiduously a peacock herd. Yet the colonel has just purchased 20 adult peacocks, and two peahens.

A gun-shot disturbance from Peterborough, N. B., where the Yankee train, there is a peacock farm, where the ornamental and rancous birds are raised for sale to wealthy Northern tourists.

There are, close by, other queer farms, where alligators swarm in cement lined basins, some small as leather splinters and some long as a canoe. All are raised to give their pebbly hides to become antiques, satchels and handbags.

And another farm where rattlesnakes are raised for the sake of their diamond-back hides, medicinal poison, and the chicken-like delicacy of their meat for food.

The wealthy tourists seldom buy the gators or snakes, to my knowledge, but the peacock farm ships the gaudy cocks and somber hens all over the country.

Homcoming Week

This is homcoming week for major athletic celebrities. Eddie Mack, curb-stone philosopher and midget wit, has come home with the robins from Texas horse tracks to remove the shutters from Rockingham's publicity.

Oarl Hill, father confessor of Finnish Marathon runners, is back from Sudbury, Ont., where he gulped, barked and gurgled so well in his native tongue to Dave Komenen, last year's B. A. A. winner and world's leading virtuoso in the ovaloid slams, on Good Friday.

IN OPENER

By Universal Service
Toronto, Ont., April 5.—A fast, high shot from the stick of Dave Trotter flew past goalie George Hainwater into the net early in the overtime period to give Montreal Maroons a 3-2 victory over Toronto Maple Leafs in the opening game of the Stanley Cup hockey final.

With the teams knotted at 2-2 at the start of the overtime session, the big Red forwards pummelled Hainwater incessantly until Trotter slipped through, took pass from Earl Robinson and flipped the puck to the upper corner of the net.

Both teams faltered twice in the middle period. Robinson counted the first goal immediately after the two off in Toronto territory on a pass from Rube Blum.

Shortly afterward Frankie Kingman, on a brilliant solo, drove the puck past Alex Connell to even matters.

King Clancy, veteran defenseman, put the Leafs in front on a pass from Nick Metz, but late in the second period Maroons' defense counted for the Maroons after a wild scramble at the goal mouth.

Rallies to Beat Georgetown in 3d Game, 6-1

Washington, D. C., April 5.—Harvard remained undefeated today.

Victorious over Villanova, 6-3, in its first game, and squeaking out a 3-2 tie with Navy in the second, the Crimson sailed into Georgetown here and came out on top in the third game of the tri-

Sox-B. C. Game at Heights

Cochran McCrehan's Boston College baseball team will open its season against the Red Sox on Monday, April 15, at Alumni Field, Chestnut Hill, instead of at Fenway Park as was originally scheduled.

On the same day, the Braves took to Worcester in take on Holy Cross.

Tuesday, opening day of the major league season, will see the B. C. line its inaugural official parade against Coach McCrehan's Northampton, Mass.

Joy reigned among the Furlongs, who are shown leading their victim, mount, Reynoldstown, back to the paddock, after the grand winner had chased up a victory in the Grand National at Aintree, England. Major and Mrs. Nee Furlong are displaying great enjoyment, while in the saddle is their son Frank who rode the winner.

Hitch-Men Take Second Game by 4-1 Score

By Walter Kiley
Providence, April 5.—One-third and final game of the long-looked-for series at Boston today pitted the Cubs against the Reds.

The Canadian-American League hockey championship series is turned away.

Second baseman's Danton took the lead in the opening period, Jerns scored off of the penalty box to knock the puck at the far end of the rink, skate solo down the ice and convert the opening marker.

From that time on there was nothing to it.

With the Reds shv two men, Art

Leisner and Wolf Ranger, midway through the second stanza, the victim, the Cubs again put on a show, with Gene Carman passing out to Red Jackson, who

Alex Minter and Phil Beeler who combined for the only score of the opening, game again re-

For good measure, the Cubs added a fourth run with just five seconds to go. Happy Harrows broke out into the open, had a shot at the net, but missed. Hap-

Ridmond threatened to break up the game at several intervals. The crowd entered into the spirit of the affair and showered down food and coins, which held up the battle for several minutes during the second session.

There was a private display of fireworks between Wolf Ranger and Jack Portland, another between Phil Karpach and Mac Harington, and a third in which Dopey Kuhn and Bobo Blake swapped a few well-aimed punches.

LEADING EQUINES RACE AT SALEM, N. H.

WHITNEYS, VANDERBILTS IN

By Sam Cohen

Lou Smith, owner of Rockingham Park, today ordered 100 new barns built in time to stable the largest number of horses to be quartered at the Salem, N. H., race track since racing made its pari-mutuel debut in New England three years ago.

Even with the construction of these additional 100 barns the list of applications are above the highest possible amount which could be stable at the track, and there will be 1200 horses on hand when the opening bugle blasts on May 15.

The big parade to Rockingham for the first meeting of the year in these parts interest that New England will again top the list of interest in racing interest this year.

According to Smith, among the applications already received are such names as the Whitneys and Vanderbilts, and he says he has received personal communication from the biggest stables in the country that the case of American thoroughbreds will be shipped this way.

"I visited the various race tracks in the South this winter," Smith said, "and I found that owners and trainers were more than anxious to ship to New England."

"It was gratifying to know that they favored coming to Rockingham, and the flood of applications I have received in the past week clearly indicates we will have the select stables and their best mounts on hand when Rockingham opens."

"This, no doubt, is a tremendous boost for New England. It definitely proves that this section of the country is the hub of racing the world over, and I hope it will never be nullified."

As the result, Johnson finds himself in such fast company as Ray Lenahan, of Providence, R. I., the champion of the year, and George T. Dunlap, Jr., defending champion and 1933 national title holder, and Arthur M. Lynch of the Wingfoot Club, Mamaroneck, N. Y.

Dunlap and Lynch clash in the other semifinal.

The Indian part of the day was played by Dunlap, who turned back Howard Tron, Elmina, N. Y., 4 and 3.

Fowler

Marathoner Back Home

Bob Fowler, famous marathoner of 30 years ago, is in Boston for a vacation, home from his athletic trainer's job in Brazil.

Fowler's most widely publicized race in the B. A. A. grand of 1902 when Tom Longboat broke the record.

Bob's flight through South Wales in 1904 was halted abruptly when a freight train crossed his path.

The Indian just managed to beat the train to the crossing and still won a lead. Fowler never could make up.

Fowler says a Brazilian by name of Ceballos will be the world's next 10,000 meter champion.

PILOT Avoids JORDAN

CERTAIN HE'LL GIVE IN

By Joe Cashman
Fayetteville, N. C., April 5.—The Braves are in the domain of holdout Jordan today.

"Buck" lives over in Salisbury, which is only a fair bicycle ride from here.

He is a fast runner and a fast pitcher. He is a fast runner and a fast pitcher. He is a fast runner and a fast pitcher.

The latest picture is that he is a fast runner and a fast pitcher. He is a fast runner and a fast pitcher. He is a fast runner and a fast pitcher.

TRAINING

Joe Ball will not say now whether it is probably certain or a possibility. The possibility of Jordan not being in shape to play when the bell rings, if he remains at home until then is very remote in St. Louis' opinion.

"Buck is too smart not to realize that in training," says the pilot.

"From the way he hit on his first day at St. Pete, I know he worked out for weeks before that. I'll bet he's been in uniform every day since coming here."

"You can bet it down he'll be our first starter in the opening game and will be in top form."

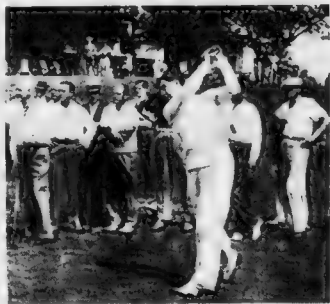

REDS' OFFER Rejected

Southbridge, April 5 (AP)—Declaring that terms offered upon last autumn had been refused, Jacob K. "Jack" Edwards, former Dartmouth basketball captain and outfielder, had returned his unsigned contract to the Cincinnati Reds today. ACE Asks to PITCH

ATLANTA CLUB OPPONENTS

By Bill Grimes

Atlanta, Ga., April 5.—Robert Moses Grove, upon whose shoulders rests, to a great extent, the fate of the Red Sox, was to make his second appearance of the season on the mound this afternoon against the Crackers at Spiller Park.

Just a week ago at Sarasota, Grove held the Phillies to one hit in four innings, on his hilltop debut for 1935.

Johnny Vargas nicknamed "Lefty" for a hit in the second, with two down, and the ex-Giant was the only man to reach first on the great portrait.

Grove has been feeling so well since he pitched a week ago that he told Manager Cronin just before we left Sarasota that he wanted to pitch against the Crackers today.

He also expressed a desire to be on the hilltop in Charlotte next Tuesday.

Any time Grove asks to pitch it's a certainty that his arm is in perfect condition, that he knows it and is anxious to get in as much competition as possible.

The Atlanta Crackers can hit that ball. They nicked Cronin, Mueller and Wilson for 13 blows in the opening game here.

Therefore, if Grove succeeds in holding them in check this afternoon he is headed for a successful season.

DeMARZIO WINS Final by K. O.

William DeMarzio of Norwood slugged his way to victory over Ed Jensen of Boston in one of the outstanding heavyweight preliminary bouts in the Irish-American A. C., South Boston.

Jensen was down eight times but put up one of the gamiest battles seen at the club this year.

In the final DeMarzio knocked out Ralph Worth of Norwood in the second round.

Summary of the final bouts:
In the first round, Ed Jensen, Norwood, 11, won from Lou Fontaine, Norwood, 11, by a knockout in the 10th round.
In the second round, Ralph Worth, Norwood, 11, won from Lou Fontaine, Norwood, 11, by a knockout in the 10th round.

Mr. Boston Mack Sees Race Boom

By Jack Conway

SPEAKING of news: Sergeant Eddie Mack arrived in town from Epsom Downs, Houston, Tex., where he was boss of Lou Smith's publicity department.

The merry top sergeant will catch at Rockingham Park, where he will serve in the same capacity for the meeting which opens on May 15 and closes on June 17.

"Pikers always bury the plunger," remarked Mack after telling how he lost a healthy wage at Epsom Downs by the proverbial law.

Jack Conway writes for a temporary racing boom this year with Rockingham, breaking last year's high.

DOG RACING

Revere is assured of dog racing as a result of the action of the Revere Committee and Mayor James M. O'Brien. There will be two clubs, and they will hold away from late spring until early fall.

Revere is an ideal spot for dog racing. In the summer it is an amusement center, and dog racing will add to the general business of the city.

Mayor O'Brien has always been interested in sports, and he believes that if dog racing is encouraged properly, it is a wholesome form of amusement.

An effort will be made to get dog breeders and owners to enter dogs at the Revere meetings. Such a program will eliminate some of the common objections to dog racing.

Dog racing at the Garden is out. The place is not large enough for a track which would furnish real competition. Dog racing is an outdoor sport and should never be placed indoors.

The class dogs cannot show at their best when they are obliged to run on a small track.

Most of the original opposition to dog tracks was due to the fact the promoters didn't use judgment in the selection of sites.

They foolishly decided to build tracks in residential districts and in towns which had voted against dog racing.

Indulgent promotion will prove helpful to dog and horse racing in Massachusetts.

The public voted for horse and dog racing, but insists that these sports be conducted properly. Both pastimes are still on trial in the State. The future status of horse and dog racing will depend on how our Massachusetts tracks are conducted.

Intelligence is also important at the race track where it comes in picking winners. Dave Wilson, star handicapper for the Boston Evening American and Boston Sunday Advertiser, clicked with another of his best bets yesterday at Boston. Wilson won the fourth race and paid $12.50. I hope you had a bet down.

LEWIS AGAIN

STRANGLER LEWIS continues to try to annoy youthful Dan O'Mahoney, Irish heavyweight champion. El Rieby, Lewis' manager, plans to come to Boston to continue his drive on O'Mahoney.

"Lewis," writes Rieby, "instead of being thrown or held to a draw by O'Mahoney in London, drew the Irishman as clean as a whistle in the third round and was declared the winner."

Jack McGrath, realizing that a victory over Lewis would mean in America, sent a false report to this country stating O'Mahoney was the winner in the third round.

Rieby, says Lewis, who has been wrestling in the States, plans to go to New York to get the backing of the New York Athletic Commission in his drive for title recognition. Lewis says he has $10,000 he is ready to post to bind a bout with O'Mahoney.

"Paul Bowser," adds Rieby, "is handicapping O'Mahoney's opponents. How come Dan has not taken on men like Lewis, Sonnenberg, De Glare, George or London?"

McGrath doesn't stop claiming O'Mahoney defeated Lewis, the Strangler will bring suit against O'Mahoney and McGrath for damages.

I do not believe the public wants O'Mahoney to tackle the handpickers at this stage of his career. McGrath has brought the Irish champion along at slow stages, and Dan is entitled to a few more tune up matches before being called upon to clash with Lewis.

When the Strangler was champion, he did his share of handpicking opponents. Billy Randell, Lewis' former manager picked his share of third and fourth rate opponents for London with Lewis.

The question and the reason behind it develop out of successive days to business and financial ideas over the past few years.

With capital making recurrent flights to hedge, each flight was particularly marked by purchases of gold and silver.
